VINTAGE MP | SHOFU

Vintage MP Shofu - SHOFU

Vintage MP is a new generation of metal bond porcelain, designed with the latest--- discoveries in porcelain technology. The ultra-fine micro porcelain is adapted to the diffused light reflection of natural enamel and dentin. One advantage of an increase of the diffused light reflection of the dentin powders is that a greater part of the indirect light is not being refracted or spread by the opaquer, but is already in the dentin layer. The light optical properties of natural teeth are simply reproduced, and the contours of the opaquer metal frame are optically minimized.

- Effortlessly build a 1.0 mm PFM
 - Exceptionally wide CTE range
 - Extremely fine and dense paste opaques
 - Enhanced bonding strength for all PFM alloys
 - Easily simulates the wear of natural dentition

Vintage MP ONE SHOT

One Shot Uni-Layer PorcelainOne Shot Uni-layer Porcelain is a revolutionary next generation ceramic material that dramatically improves productivity and aesthetic outcomes with a simplified, single powder build-up process. An extension to the popular Vintage MP and ZR product lines, just one baking cycle provides flawless color match for any Vita shade. The densely-packed homogeneous material yields vastly reduced shrinkage verses multiple firing-cycle techniques while allowing one powder to build to full contour.

HF INCISAL - CERATEC

HF INCISAL - CERATEC

Enamel or Incisal

Enamel are slightly less translucent than Incisals (more opaceous).

So, for that technicians that are used to build the porcelain covering their dentine powder, with a complete layer of Incisals powder, then the one to be used by them should be INCISALS. In the other hand , the technician is used to place Enamel powder just on the first third of the crown. Then the proper powder to be used should be ENAMELS.

In the case, you are using ENAMELS, and you see your fired porcelain, appearing a little bit lacking of color or slightly turned to grey, is not because of the color of the porcelain. It is just the Enamel layer, that went too high over the second and third third of the preparation/ crown / dentine powder. Bottom line, more translucent is the Incisal powder , more opaceous is the Enamel powder .

For people that uses less Enamel, then the powder is Enamel.

For people that covers the crown with Incisal, then the powder is Incisal.

LF INCISALS - CERATEC

LF INCISALS - CERATEC

Enamel or Incisal

Enamel are slightly less translucent than Incisals (more opaqueous).

So, for that technicians that are used to build the porcelain covering their dentine powder, with a complete layer of Incisals powder, then the one to be used by them should be INCISALS.

In the other hand , the technician is used to place Enamel powder just on the first third of the crown. Then the proper powder to be used should be ENAMELS.

In the case, you are using ENAMELS, and you see your fired porcelain, appearing a little bit lacking of color or slightly turned to grey, is not because of the color of the porcelain.

It is just the Enamel layer, that went too high over the second and third third of the preparation/ crown / dentine powder. Bottom line, more translucent is the Incisal powder , more opaqueous is the Enamel powder .

For people that uses less Enamel, then the powder is Enamel.

For people that covers the crown with Incisal, then the powder is Incisal.

GC Initial IQ ONE body (Layering)

Initial IQ ONE BODY

Layering-over-Zircon Layering-over-Metal Press-over-Zircon Press-over-Metal Through the development of the Initial IQ - One Body - Concept, GC can now offer compact ceramic systems for the fast and easy reproduction of the standard Vita(R) shades*. The approaches enable technicians to concentrate on form and function and create vitality and a natural appearance with the Initial IQ Lustre Pastes NF, the newly developed 3-dimensional ceramic stains, in the final step. The GC Initial IQ - One Body approach stands for consistent quality and aesthetical results and again with fewer materials. The 'One Body' concept is a simple and economical procedure where the contour is created with one body shade. Compatible with standard porcelain alloys as well as all Zr-based technologies. Available as layering or press system. Quick and easy to learn. Consistency and predictability in quality of work regardless of technique or material.

Consider using GC INITIAL IQ Lustre Pastes NF set to ensure color matching

ONE BUILD PORCELAIN | ELITE (PFM)

ONE BUILD PORCELAIN - ELITE

This new "ONE BUILD" 'porcelain system is based on a single powder build-up whereby the dentine and incisal are pre-mixed in a special proportion in order to be able to achieve all the Vita shades including AO and BO with just 11 premixed bottles.

BENEFITS: to this kit are increased production, minimizing porcelain inventory and enhanced esthetics by eliminating the demarcation line between body and incisal. Simply follow the firing instructions enclosed and select the proper bottle for your specific shade requirement. The ease of technique and accurate shade matching will become apparent with your first case.

PRINCIPLE: Based on a strong chroma on the opque and a high translucent body mass.

Mixing Powders with other brands : Yes, as the CTE has a wide range, there is no indications against using other brand powders, either to add to the mass, or the correct after baking. Which is not warranted is the color resulting of the mix.

CORRECTIONS: Corrections can be made either with the same Elite powders like any other porcelain, or with Vision Low, (same as used for Vision Press) Also corrections can be made with ANY other porcelain.

Available Powder and Colors :

Dentine/Incisals : 11 bottles Paste Opaques : A0 to D4 Clear (High translucency)

VINTAGE HALO PORCELAIN - SHOFU (PFM)

VINTAGE HALO PORCELAIN - SHOFU (PFM)
CM Ceramic over Metal
Leucite-reinforced feldspar porcelain for all usual ceramic alloys

The high-fusing porcelain system had been developed over several years in cooperation with Makoto Yamamoto and features a natural scattering and reflection of light (halo effect).

VINTAGE HALO PORCELAIN - SHOFU
 Comprehensive research of several thousands of natural teeth with computer-aided color analysis resulted in a new definition of the dental color spectrum and the expansion to 38 shades.

The 16 standard shades (A, B, C, D) have been expanded:

- * Root shades: chroma-intensive shades for the A-, B-, C-shade groups
- * Red Shift shades: reddish shades, the so called "5th shade group"
- * Value Plus shades: shades with an enhanced brightness value

VINTAGE HALO PORCELAIN - SHOFU Indication

Compatibility with all usual ceramic alloys with CTE values of $13.5-14.6 \times 10^{-6}$ (25°C-500°C)

VINTAGE HALO PORCELAIN - SHOFU Benefits

- * natural-looking fluorescence and opalescence
- * ability to use almost any ceramic alloy including those which contain up to 50% silver
- * economic layering technique by modified

2-layering-technique (Body / Opal Incisal)

- * color indicators for all components
- * high build-up stability
- * low firing shrinkage

VINTAGE ZR - Press Over Zirconia | SHOFU

VINTAGE ZR - PRESS OVER - SHOFU

Vintage ZR is a veneering material that matches the C.T.E. of any zirconia oxide substructure. Vintage ZR porcelain does not have the fracture and vitrification tendency of competitive porcelains. This user friendly and highly aesthetic porcelain has the same firing parameters as Shofu's Vintage AL alumina substructure veneering material. The even distribution of leucite crystals in the glass matrix makes it very kind to the opposing dentition and results in aesthetics superior to any other zirconia porcelain.

- * Intuitive system components
- * Highly stable ceramic
- * Easy to learn color layout
- * Can be layered on any zirconia substructure

VINTAGE ZR PRESS OVER employs a leucite reinforced feldspar porcelain designed to accommodate an exceptionally wide range of thermal expansion coefficient (from 13.6 to 15.0) for both non-precious and high noble alloy restorations.

VINTAGE ZR PRESS OVER offers the dentist and technician virtually unlimited shade matching possibilities in fabricating economical PFM restorations with superior natural light reflecting properties.

ALUMINA COPINS - ALGLASS

ALUMINA COPINS - ALGLASS

Features:

Alumina sintered at 1700?C is one of the most resistant materials known nowadays. However, the high temperatuand thermal contraction inherent to the process make the use of this pure material impracticable for dental structur,making.

* Materials usually called glasses have low fusing point but, on the other hand, have small mechanical resistance.

* The Infiltrated glass in a pre-sintered alumina matrix results in a composite that fulfill the mechanical requirements and bicompatibility in a "Metal-Free" technique for structures and coping making.

* Material and Chemical Engineers Researchers from Brazilian Universities together with specialists in DenProsthesis and Cemat (R) developed a family of products that uses this technology, making this idea available to tlmarket at low cost, high quality and reliability.

* The ALGLASS means alumina and together with

GLASS adds it potential to each other. It was still required to have equipments compatible with the Brazilian reality to enable the use of state-of-the-art technology by the most number of Dental prosthesis technicians.

Descriptions:

- * Sinterization temperature : 1120 C
- * Infiltration Temperature : 1100 C
- * Can be built direct on the working model
- * Infiltration Glass is compatible with Inceram techniques
